Two weeks to that sane Thanksgiving dinner.

The United States land forces are following the birds southward.

The career of Herr Appelmann will be followed with eager anxiety by a large number of people.

Of course, you are sticking to the promise of having one day without serving wheat on the table.

Venison is not such a common article of diet in Vermont as it usually is this time of the year. Thus Gen. High Cost of Living is carrying more of our redoubts in Vermont.

Windsor county has the record of three human beings shot by hunters during the last two weeks. Conservation of our human resources ought to be practiced a trifle more assiduously over there.

When the war was scarcely started Germany uttered loud lamentations that England was starving the German babies. That alleged camouflage has been discarded of late since the subterfuge was pierced.

Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts, former Vermonter, is not the only American who has suffered severely in the depression of stocks and bonds during the last few weeks, only most of the others have been more successful in covering up. Depreciation of approximately four millions of dollars is a blow which would have flooded a majority of financiers in New England. Ex-Governor Foss has the sympathy of many people in his distress who hope that he will be able to get back onto his financial feet and recoup the losses recently sustained.

The entente allies are getting a grip on the throat of submarine warfare. The record of the last week so far as British shipping is concerned shows that the submarines are being brought to subjection rather than the British people. As we have said before, we repeat that the Americans have been largely responsible for this new situation. All the letters coming from American soldiers being transported to Europe testify to the immunity of the ships from submarine attack and they even announce the absence of all submarine scares on the way across the ocean.

The action of President Wilson in going before the American Federation of Labor in convention at Buffalo and making a frank statement that the co-operation of all the people of the United States is necessary if the nation and its allies are to win the war should be met with equal frankness by the members of labor organizations. There is no doubt that the vast majority of the rank and file of labor throughout the United States is loyal to the government in Washington and will do nothing which will tie the hands of that government in its purpose to make the world free for democracy and, consequently, to rid the world of the menace of unscrupulous autocracy. The American Federation of Labor may be expected to reaffirm its confidence in the government before it takes final adjournment at Buffalo.

Just so long as the Russians remain the dupes of German intrigues they will make it possible for the Teuton armies to strike heavy blows at the allies and only real friends Russia has. Great Britain, France and the United States, and probably Italy, sincerely hope for the rehabilitation of Russia not only in a military sense but in an economic and political sense as well; and they are willing to go to the extent of their ability to bring that about. On the other hand, Germany, together with Austria and Turkey, is striving to undermine the very foundation of Russian life and to destroy its national entity, while at the same time making the great nation a tool for the Kaiser's immediate purposes. Yet Russia, or a considerable portion of How to stop dandruff and loss of hair with Resinol

Here is a simple, inexpensive treatment that will generally stop dandruff and scalp itching, and keep the hair thick, long and lustrous:

At night, spread the hair apart and rub a little Resinol Ointment into the scalp gently, with the tip of the finger. Resinol Ointment will loosen the scalp and break the crust. Next morning, shampoo thoroughly with Resinol Soap and hot water. Work the creamy Resinol lather well into the scalp. Rinse with gradually cooler water, the last water being cold. All dandruff will Resinol Soap and Ointment.

Russia, refuses to see the subtle cunning exercised by so-called German diplomacy and is, in effect, committing national suicide. It is a sorry spectacle of a nation.

As soon as Kerensky gets hold of the telegraph in Russia, we may expect to hear more favorable news from that storm center. It must be remembered that early in the Bolshevik rebellion the announcement was made that the new rebels had seized the telegraph system in Petrograd, thus placing them in position to give the world the information which it served their purpose to give. Of course, there were probably other but more indirect channels of communication from Russia but far less speedy. As yet Kerensky has not been able to secure this main channel of communication, the inference being gained by reason of the fact that very little first-hand information is going out to the world from his camp.

If the bankruptcy proceedings against the Daily Caledonian, Inc., of St. Johnsbury result in the elimination of a daily paper from that field, the people of that section will have cause to regret the outcome very much, because a daily newspaper acts as an influential factor toward the quickening of the life of a community, is, in fact, quite essential toward the development and progress of the place. A weekly newspaper, however good, cannot quite meet the demand in a town or city of appreciable size, such as St. Johnsbury is. Therefore, it is to be hoped that the financial difficulties into which the youthful Daily Caledonian has run will not eventuate in the depriving of that community of a local daily newspaper. Manager W. J. Bigelow of the publishing company announces his faith that the Daily Caledonian will be published just as usual in the expected reorganization of the affairs of the concern following the bankruptcy proceedings. Mr. Bigelow certainly has worked hard and faithfully to make a success of the daily newspaper venture and he deserves something better than to see all those efforts come to naught. Possibly some plan can be prepared and assented to which will result in the continuance of a daily newspaper there. A large number of St. Johnsbury people, we feel sure, would dislike to be deprived of a daily messenger of the news of the town, the state, the nation and the world.

It must be admitted that the man who is engaged in the manufacture of a certain kind of motor car and who wanted to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas is a past master of the art of free publicity—for himself and for his kind of motor vehicle. The name of this man is constantly before the public eye in one way or another. Recently the announcement was made that his factories would be turned over to the government to be used as the government saw fit. That, of course, was a laudable and patriotic offering and the announcement of it was spread broadcast all over the land and other parts of the world, bringing a perfect shower of word bouquets and, we doubt not, an accelerated demand for the motor vehicles of that sort. But the announcement was not explicit enough; the public demanded to know if the factories were to be turned over immediately to the government and the people to be deprived of the chance of buying one of the aforementioned vehicles. Of course, that demanded another announcement from the long-headed and patriotic manufacturer and the newspapers jumped into the breach and gave him hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of free advertising by announcing that the factories would continue to turn out their usual number of motor vehicles until such time as the government actually needed the factories. And so it goes on. This automobile manufacturer has not got the press subsidized but he has got it well subsidized.

BARRE'S Y. M. C. A. WAR WORK DRIVE.

On the first day of the concerted effort in behalf of the Y. M. C. A. war work fund Barre made a good start toward the desired goal but we are still considerably short of the mark. It was mistakenly stated in yesterday's paper that Barre's quota was $1,500. The real goal of Barre is much larger, and this community will not be doing all that it should do unless the larger amount is raised; and it will be raised if the people of the community realize the splendid nature of the work which the Y. M. C. A. is doing for the soldiers and sailors of the United States, both those abroad and those at home. To bring this realization strongly to attention let us make a local application of it. Barre has, it is estimated, over 100 boys in the service of the United States government at the present time. Are we going to leave it to other communities to take care of these boys during the long, long days that are ahead of them? Or is Barre going to do its share so that the other communities in the United States will be able to take care of their own boys in the service? Of course, we do not mean to say that the money which Barre subscribes will go directly to the Barre boys who are in service, but we mean to say that in effect it will be so because the task is grouped, that is, the support is given indiscriminately. We are just as surely taking care of our Barre boys as if we were giving the money directly toward their benefit. Shall we, then, be remiss in our duty? Shall we let our Barre boys suffer for want of proper care? Equally bad, shall we shirk our responsibility onto other communities which already have their burden to carry? Barre never has had the reputation of shirking its real responsibility, and we do not believe it will acquire that reputation now. So come forward with your contributions at once.

Going Out of the Clothing Business

We Are Going to Discontinue All Lines of Suits and Overcoats

Men's, Boys' and Children's

We are now selling our large stock of the above at greatly reduced prices. Right here, right now, is a chance you won't have again for a long time to buy good, All-Wool Clothing at less than the wholesale price to-day. The Commercial Economy Board, Council of National Defense, has advised all garment and clothing manufacturers to avoid models for 1918 which have belts or needless adornments made of cloth, and to use, in so far as possible, cloth in which either reworked wool or cotton is used in part, substituted for new wool. It looks as if all or nearly all Clothing for next spring would be made in plain models and from goods not all wool. We have as yet a good line of All-Wool Suits and Overcoats for men, young men and boys, both plain and belted models. Better take a look, and if you're going to need anything in the line of Overcoats, Suits, Pants, Suits for boys, Knee Pants, you'll save money by buying now.

CURRENT COMMENT

War Fuel.

It is surprising that in all the flood of advice and suggestion poured so copiously upon the long-suffering public, nothing has been said as to the use of a war fuel which is almost as plentiful as dirt in Vermont and which costs only a small fraction of coal or wood.

We refer to that well known product of our swamps, peat.

Our state geologist in one of his reports made a guess at the quantity of peat in Vermont. We have forgotten the quantity expressed in tons, but it corresponds in magnitude to the war bond issues of to-day and war figures generally.

The geologist threw cold water on suggestions of using peat as fuel, taking the view that it was not practical. But that was some time ago, in the piping peace times. With coal at $10 a ton and a potentiality of prices still higher, the average man is inclined to wonder if it is not practicable to use peat as fuel. In some official report a few years ago, there was printed the experience of a Vermont farmer who had tried it. He tackled his peat bog with a stout heart and strong arm, dug out rectangular blocks of the potential fuel, piled it up to dry, and while drying was going on, in charge of mother nature, he procured or caused to be made a stove in which to burn it—for peat requires a much larger fire box than is used in wood and coal stoves. When it came to a practical test, peat as fuel was a distinct success, according to this experimenter. What he did, others can do. All you need is a peat-bog and a shovel—with of course an inquiring spirit.

Now then is it possible and practicable to use peat as a war fuel? Will not some person tell us—and thus perhaps confer a favor on the human race?—Burlington News.

Dear Uncle Sam, suppose you try, sir, To nab his nibs, the cussed Kaiser. When caught, I think you really oughter Drop him into boiling water. I'd try him out, if I were you, And utilize the cuss for glue.

F. B. T., who sings this song for B. L. T., is hereby entered in the preliminaries for The Colyum's Kant-the-Kaiser contest. For all of the many-hued replies received in response to our query as to what shall be done with Willie, there is something about the glue suggestion that sticks to us.

Dame Rumor Exposed in Rutland County

There was no more foundation to start such a story than there was last spring when started a story that I was married to the baker woman. I was on every lisping tongue in the hamlet. I got lots of congratulations and invitations to set up the cigars on the occasion. I can get along with that better than to have it said that I let a dumb beast go three days without any feed.—Poultry item.

We shall look to Japan for an army of 2,000,000 on the eastern front, and then let the Maximalists make a German peace if they must.

In Re the Kaiser's Ticket Down the River.

Early returns in The Colyum's Kant-the-Kaiser contest indicate an almost unanimous desire to see some distinctly bizarre penalty inflicted on the man who said, "I shall stand no nonsense from America after the war."

Somewhat condensed, an exhaustive reply from "H2O," suggests boiling in syrup of tar. Lefty Louise believes the Kaiser should be the first transgressor to occupy the new piece of furniture in the state prison at Windsor.

"Lusitania" wires a cyanide recipe, and J. R. H. sticks out for a cup of hemlock such as Socrates drank. "George" goes back to the Spanish inquisition and submits a varied list of punishments, all of which are sovereign cures for Kaiserism, but wholly unoriginal. The winning suggestion hasn't been received yet.

How They Keep the Spunk in Spunky Lamolite.

Well, we have been having some excitement in Felcherville. One neighbor tried probing after the other's heart with a fork. The latter resented it and tried to knock the other over with a stone. Then both tried stones a while and such a scorching as could be heard a quarter of a mile. Now we have a couple of loose ribs, a heart out of plumb, several minor bruises and so forth. Say, when boys get along towards 90 don't you think it about time that they were more composed and thinking what the Lord would have them do and how long before their turn would come without rushing the case along? Go slow, boys, go slow.—Felcherville item.

In the aftermath of Tuesday's doings in New York, we predict that "Hail, Hail, The Gang's All Here" is due for a revival in popular favor.

Every night the contractor beds with straw the fresh laid cement on South Main street, but so far nobody has sprung the old wheeze about baby and the packing case.

Probably the Granitville soldier boy who wrote home from overseas for a fruit cake hasn't heard of the food pledge yet.

WILLIAMSTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sheridan left here the 10th for Bridgeport, Conn., to spend the winter with their son, Ray, who is working in a plant there, where 2,000 people are employed. Mr. Sheridan will work in the room where Ray is overseer, and may return to Williamstown if they like in that city.

The Rural Good Luck club will meet next Saturday, the 17th, with Mrs. Ralph (Gale); the subject for study is New York City.

Leland Wright, who has been for the past year employed in Hoon, N. Y., is in town on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wright.

Mrs. Frank E. Lang of Hill street in Barre was in town yesterday, visiting friends.

Born, at Barre City hospital, on Nov. 5, a daughter to Dr. and Mrs. Carl F. Robinson.

John C. Burnett, who has driven one of George T. Colby's heavy teams on the road the past summer, has finished work for this season and is visiting relatives in Waitsfield.

Mrs. Diantha Sanders has lately had a visit from her granddaughter, Miss Lula Gallant of Washington, who has been for some time employed in the Ira Cafe home in that town.

Glen F. McAllister & Co., carried their sixth car of potatoes this week, paying for this car $125 a bushel. The potatoes were shipped to Manchester, N. H.

Somewhere around 10,000 Christmas trees will be shipped from this station this season. We are told that the teams drawing them find that 100 trees makes a good load. Quite a quantity of them are being cut on the farm of Perley E. Fletcher, formerly owned by Albert H. Norris. A variety of sizes are called for, the largest being 15 feet in height, with a much larger percentage of smaller sizes.

Those "Martyrs."

If the White House pickets are "martyrs" they are so because their stage management is so good as to create a perfect illusion. When arrested, as of course they were eager to be, they refused to pay fines in order that they should go to jail. When they came out of jail they and their press agents capitalized their sufferings in the hope of arousing public sympathy for some wantonly persecuted yet inoffensive women. It is all very harrowing until one sees that it is all a carefully planned and thoroughly rehearsed and skillfully exploited performance.—Springfield Republican.
